Preparing for our future Washington trip, the Juniors were busy this year with several important projects as well as many smaller ones. The most profitable results came from sales of Christmas wreaths and greeting cards.

At our first meeting in September we elected the following officers: president, Donald Turner; vice-president, Mary Turner; secretary, Eleanor Gay; treasurer, Carleen Stone; and Student Council representatives, Nancy Kelleher and Teddy Kimball. Miss Hall and Mr. Chandler have aided us as class advisers.

The Juniors were well represented in the sports program of Paris High with many participating. Out for football were Billy Snow, Joe Harney, Henry Morton, Richard MacGown, Gary Downing, Roger Tuttle, and Donald Turner. Those representing the Juniors in basketball were Billy Snow, Ray Wentworth, Henry Morton, Nelson Dillingham, and Sheldon Davis. This year the ski team held an interest for these Juniors: Gary Downing, Loring Strout, Clifford Morse and Teddy Kimball. The Junior girls were also busy, with Annette Card, Amy Hapgood, Nancy Kelleher, and Glenice Harding making the girls' varsity basketball team.

The Junior Class extends thanks to the townspeople for helping us get a good start towards our Washington trip next year.

Freshman reception provided us with our first venture of the year. D-Day was the nineteenth of October, and the festivities were topped off with a rousing reception in the gym. Followed by a dance, it proved a happy time for us all.

Our dramatic attempt for the year was the production of the following one-act plays: "Ghost Farm," an unusual mystery directed by Mr. Griffith, our class advisor; "Hurricane Hill," and "Prom Date".

Our class has many outstanding athletes. On the state champion baseball team of 1951, Paul LeBlanc, Phil Martin, Roland Lauzier, and Robert Bennett were our representatives. Our football lettermen were Leroy Lombard, Roland Lauzier, and Phil Martin. Norm Block managed the team. Sophomores also offered versatile LeBlanc, Martin, and "Zeke" Mason to our basketball team.

The fifty members of the Freshman Class are led by the following officers: president, Jack Merrill; vice-president, Allan Snow; secretary, John Caldwell; treasurer, William Bryant; student council representatives, Allan Snow and Robert Cushman. Miss Laverty and Mr. Cunningham are our class advisors.

In September our girls were welcomed by the Senior girls at a big sister party.

The Sophomores held a reception for us in October. Dressed in required costumes, we carried out their requests all day. In the evening a dance was held in the gym.

We tried to be good sports, and had a wonderful time.

Our class has been active in sports and school activities. Merrill, Caldwell, McLaughlin, Robbins and Glover were football squad members. We are proud that Allan Snow made the varsity basketball team. Eloise Gay was on the girls' varsity basketball squad. Junior varsity basketball squad members were Mary Gordon, Beverly Thayer and Joanne Beaulier. Our representatives on the boys' J. V. squad were Cushman, Bryant, Caldwell, Brown, Tibbetts, Robbins, Lary, McLaughlin and Swallow. Ski team members were Beck, Glover, Caldwell and Brown. JOKES

The brakes screeched in front of the house, but Harry Robbins had not stopped in time.

His head hanging low, he approached the door and knocked.

"I ran over your cat," he said to Mrs. Johnson. Seeing her shocked look he added quickly: "But I want to replace him." The woman nodded. "Get busy then," she said, "there's a mouse in my pantry."

Mrs. Chandler is fond of having her fortune told. The other day she was informed: "It is terrible. You will be a widow soon. Your husband is going to die a violent death."

Mrs. Chandler asked innocently: "And will I be acquitted?"

"Be a wealthy pedestrian; sell us your car."—Ripley and Fletcher.

Cliff Crooker lived way back on Streaked Mountain, where no one had ever seen a motorcycle. So one day when a man came roaring down the bumpy trail on a puffing motorcycle, Cliff, excited, grabbed his gun and shot at it.

"Did you kill the varmint, Cliff?" hollered Beth.

"No, it's still growling back thar in the bushes, but I sure made it let go of that man."

Mrs. Mary Wheeler was visiting an exhibition of domestic appliances and paused to gaze through the glass panel of a laundry which was being swirled and splashed. "Well," said she, "if that's television, they can have it."

"The weaker sex is the stronger sex because of the weakness of the stronger sex for the weaker sex."

Mr. Cunningham: When Union troops captured a Virginia town during the Civil War, they discovered a stockpile of unused grey uniforms. The Yankee commander thought he could make use of this clothing and instructed the local dyer to change the uniforms to blue. The man did, but just as he was completing his task, the Confederates swept in and retook the town. One of the first things the Southern commander did was to order the poor dyer to fade the blue out of those uniforms and return them to their original gray.

Faced with this mountainous task for the second time, the dyer closed his shop and joined the army. This is known as the case of the old dyer who didn't fade, but just soldiered away.

Mr. Huff: Everything in our home is run by switches except the children.

Senior Amateur Show All Loco Talent

At a recent teacher's meeting the discussion chanced to be concerned with the frustrated feelings and suppressed desires of the group.

Mr. Small: I must confess I occasionally have a terrible urge to see if the drivers' training car can do ninety.

Mr. Chandler: I sometimes wish I could make some T. N. T. and conceal it under Murch's chair.

Mr. Griffith: I often wonder if I could get away with shooting a referee.

Mr. Bean: I wish I could bring myself to hold high C just a fraction of a second too long.

Mr. Huff and Mr. Coombs: Some day we are hoping to set all that shop machinery going and then walk out and lock the door.

Mr. Cunningham: And I have an uncontrollable urge to repeat everything I hear. I can't wait to get out of here!

Bud Colby: My car will go 180 miles per hour and stop on a dime.

Cliff Crooker: Yeah? Then what happens?

Bud Colby: A little putty knife comes off the dash and scrapes me off the windshield.

They were sitting on opposite ends of the sofa.

Ray: Bet I know what you're thinking.

Lucy: Well, you certainly don't act like it.

D. Dodge: Any mail, Mother?

Don's mother: You have several invitations; one from the Johnson's, one from the McAlister's, and one from the U. S. Army.

Miss Hall: What happened, Conductor? Why is the train stalled?

Conductor: Nothing at all lady. Calm yourself. We just hit a sheep.

Miss Hall: Was it on the tracks?

Conductor: No, we chased it into its pen.

Heard in Math class:

Reno, Nevada, is a mathematical town. It specializes in short division.

A sweet voice called the telephone office repeatedly one day to ask, "What time is it now, please?"

Finally recognizing the voice, the operator asked, "Eloise, are you going somewhere?"

"Nope," she said, "just boiling eggs for Home Ec."

A few years ago—

Mr. Ellis Bean struggled into the Norway bus with five small children.

"These all yours," asked the bus driver, "or is it a picnic?"

"All mine," said our janitor, "and it's no picnic!"

Hoping to inspire his workers with promptness and energy, Mr. Henry Morton hung a number of signs reading "DO IT NOW," around the factory and office. When asked some weeks later how his staff had reacted, he shook his head sadly. "I don't even like to talk about it," he said. "The cashier skipped with $1,000; the head bookkeeper eloped with the best secretary I ever had; three typists asked for more money; the factory workers went on strike; and the office boy joined the navy."

John, addressing the Chronicle Staff: And now, I wish to tax your memories for a moment.

Lee Murch: Good heavens, why haven't I thought of that before.

Alfred Brown rushed into the doctor's office bleeding from a cut on top of his head. As the doctor prepared to treat it, he asked how it had occurred.

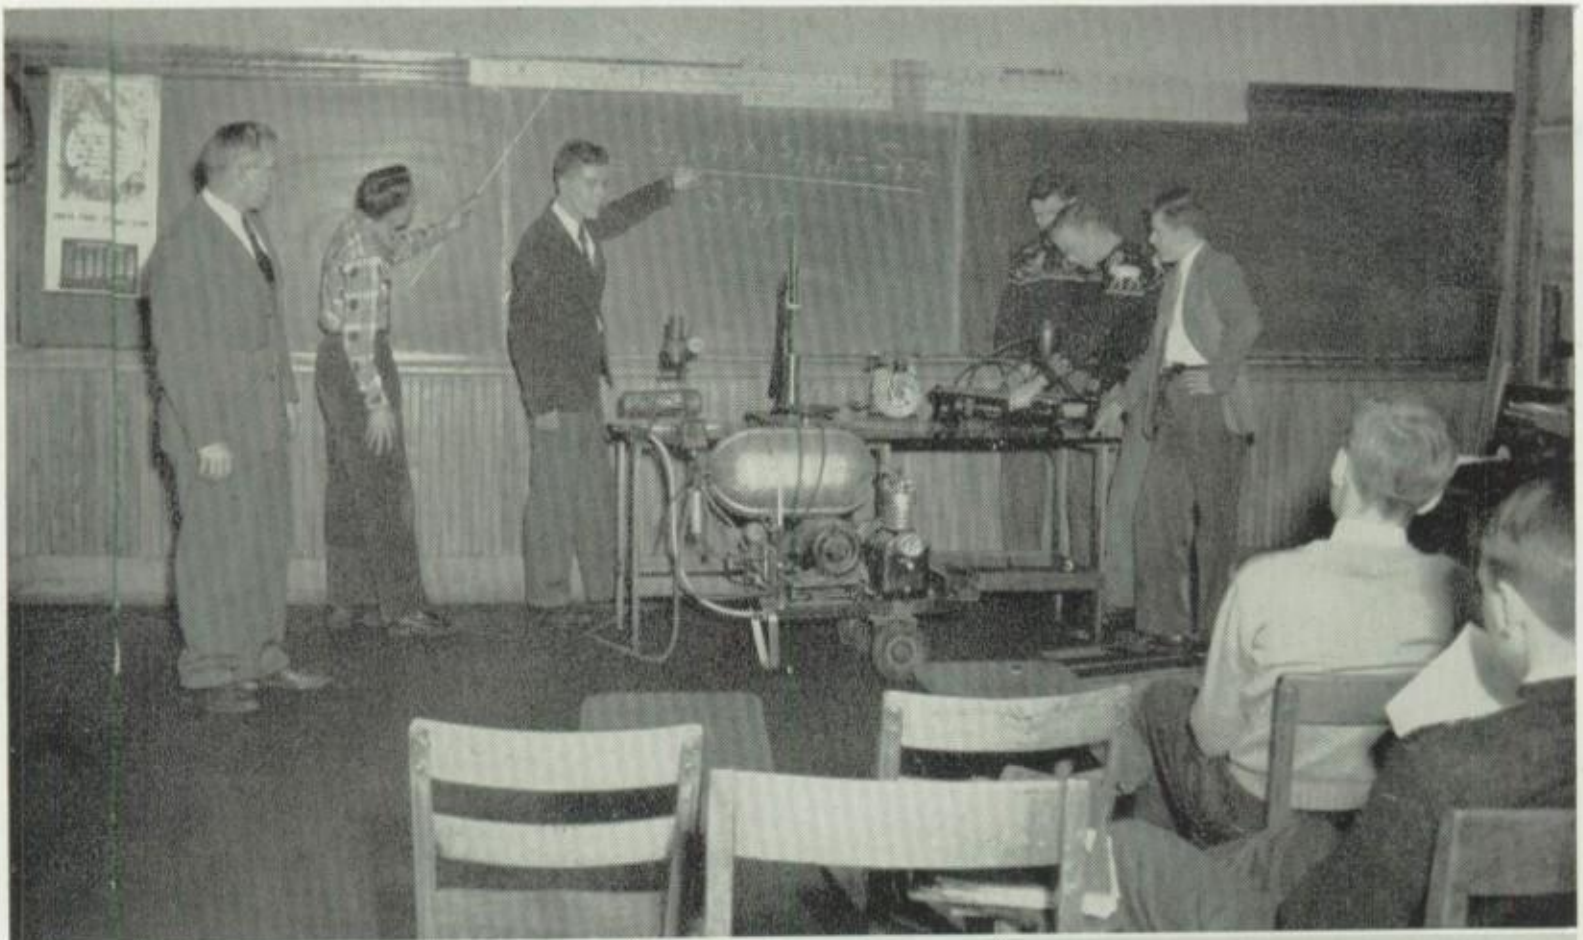

"I bit myself," said Alfred rather proudly.

The doctor recoiled. "Bit yourself on top of the head? But that's impossible!" "No, it isn't," grinned Alfred, "You see, I climbed up on a chair to do it."

CARDINALS LEARN

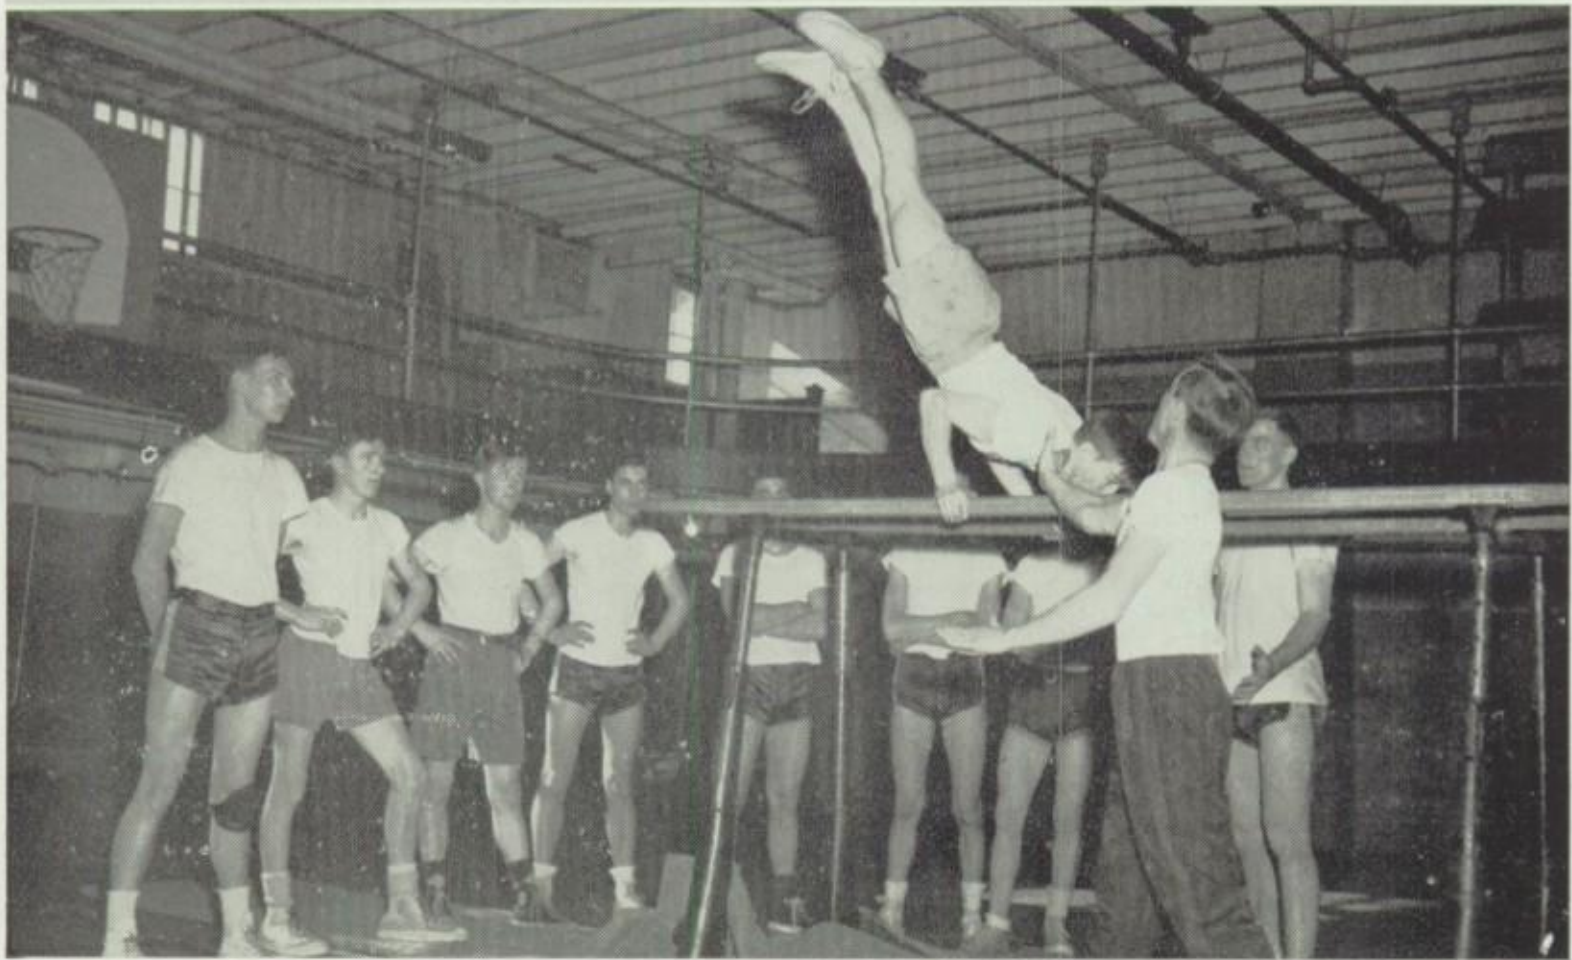

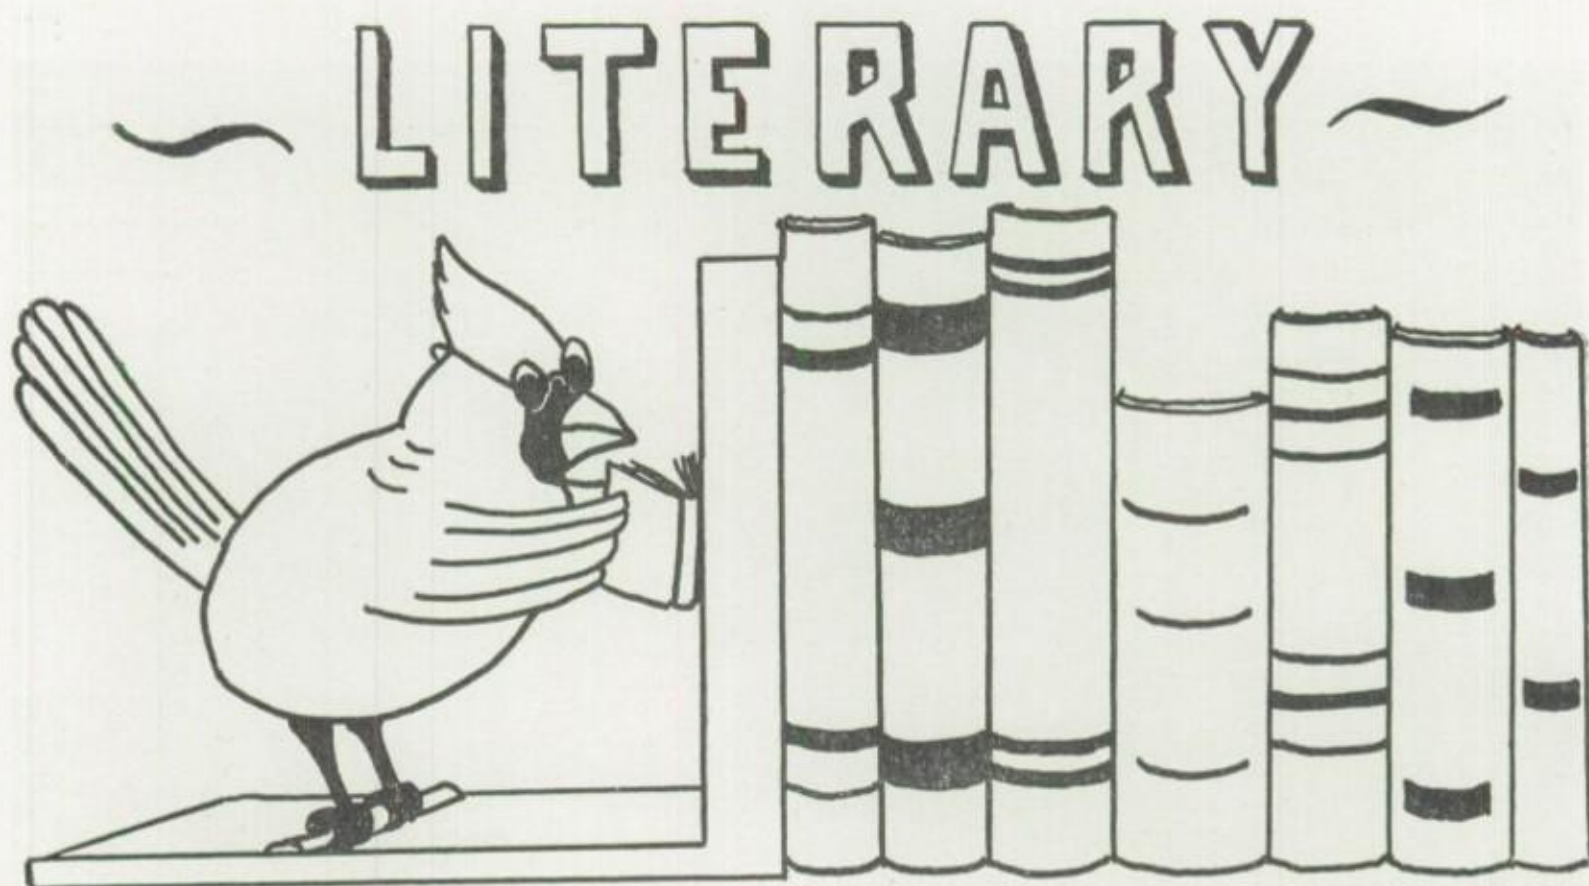

FORMULAE FOR

SUCCESSFUL LIVING

NOT WHETHER WE WIN; BUT HOW WE PLAY

It seemed as though school would never end. The day seemed extra long. I wanted so much to get home early from school because I was going to visit friends in New York for the week's vacation and had never been there before. The bell finally rang and school was dismissed. As I passed the book store, I stopped long enough to buy a school seal. I placed it in my pocket and hurried home.

"Hello, Mom," I called as I went through the door, "is everything all ready?"

"Hello," she replied, "yes, everything is ready and I will drive you to the station about five."

Through the excitement I managed to eat a few bites and soon found myself saying good-byes and was on my way.

On the third evening at my friend's home, after coming into the house from a show, I reached into my coat pocket. What should I find but my school seal! I hung up my coat and took the seal to show Bobby. He is about nine years old and very curious. Showing him the seal, I explained it to him as best I could. He was much interested and suggested we show it to his Dad.

Bobby's father took the seal and seemed to study it. Soon he spoke, "It's not whether we win, but how we play." He paused and then continued, "Tell me, what does that mean to you?"

"Well," I replied, "to me it means that if you play the game fair and square, you will truly win in the end no matter what the score."

"Do you associate it with just sports?" he asked.

"I hadn't given it much thought," I replied, "but now that you mention it I believe it can apply to almost anything in life. For example, let's think of the student who has difficulty with his school work. If he does his best, studies hard and puts all he can into it, he will gain in the end although he may be the lowest ranking member of his class."

This was only one of our many discussions on how this motto could apply to life. The remainder of my visit was full of fun and excitement, and I soon found myself at the station saying goodbye and thanking them for a wonderful time.

Just before I left, Bobby's father said, "I have given your school motto much thought, and I have decided to have a plaque made for my office bearing the motto, "Not Whether We Win But How We Play."

OUTSIDE ACTIVITIES

The problem of pupils being excused from classes to participate in outside activities has been a subject of discussion at Paris High School for some time. I think that all extra activities should be held outside of class time. A student should not engage in more activities than he can schedule without missing class work. When time is continually taken from classes, information is lost by the pupil, and the teacher's time is wasted. When a test is given, the pupil may receive a low mark because he missed important material. I believe that extra-curricular activities will soon become more important than scholarship in our school if this practice continues.

By having one session of school, I think this problem would be solved. During the afternoon all outside activities could be carried on without taking class time. The students who do not participate would have these hours to do their studying. The rotating schedule might be another answer because an activity period could be worked in when necessary. As this school has worked under the rotating schedule before, I think it could be successfully carried through.

What is the solution to this problem? I think that we should either schedule an activity period or insist that all extra-curricular activities be carried on after school hours.

BASKETBALL

A whistle blows; a ball is tossed into the air; there is a scramble for possession, and another of America's hardwood court games is underway. Basketball is one of the most popular winter sports in the United States. It is an original American game which was formerly played with a rubber ball and a peach basket with the bottom pushed out. At that time there was no limit to the number of players on a team. The game was very rough because you did not have to bounce the ball before you could move, and there were very few rules. As the game gained popularity, more rules were made; the number of players was reduced to seven; and the rubber ball was discarded for a leather one. After each basket the referee would have a jump ball at center court. In those days twenty points a game were considered very high. As basketball started being played on a professional basis, it became necessary to do something to hinder the tall boys who merely had to stand under the basket and have someone throw a ball to them above the reach of other players.

That is why the ten-second lane was made. When the number of players was reduced to five, it became a high scoring game. The omission of the center jump after each basket made the game faster.

Various offenses are used in basketball. One of them calls for three men outside, one man in the pivot and one man floating under the basket. The Paris High School team uses the following offense: one man on the outside, called the playmaker; one man in the middle, called the pivot; one man underneath the basket, who is known as the float or sucker; and two wing men on the sides.

The most effective defense is the man to man defense.

Basketball has changed a lot since the days when peach baskets were used for hoops, but the game is as enjoyable to watch, play, or listen to as it will ever be.

THE GIFT OF LIBERTY

Few of us appreciate our most wonderful gifts. For example, consider the gift of liberty. How many people realize what it is and what it stands for? Men are fighting and dying for it every day. They are fighting for us, the people of the country, so that we may have and enjoy a free and peaceful way of life. We are fortunate indeed in having freedom of religion, press, and speech. Any day this could be changed, and later we would be sorry we had not taken advantage of these wonderful gifts.

Any one of us is willing to live in this country and use the opportunities which are offered, but few of us are willing to take a little time for civil defense, Red Cross work or anything else that could aid our country during this crisis. The people of this country are too confident. True, we have won every major war we have fought, but one does not win every time. If we are to have a successful future, the people must work together for the preservation of the gift of liberty.

A BOY AND HIS DOG

Great-grandfather, telling about the exciting times of his childhood to little nine year old Donnie, began this story:

"Well, Donnie, today I'll tell you how Shiner and I solved a mystery. When I was about your age, I had a puppy called Shiner. One morning the dog and I went to the woods to play. My mother told us not to go because a man had escaped from a local asylum. Although we knew better, we went just the same. Toward noon, after about three hours of walking, we came upon an old shack. When I saw smoke coming out of the chimney, I was frightened, for this place hadn't been in use for years. Slowly Shiner and I sneaked toward the building. We peeked in the windows and saw a strange man who fitted the very description of the escaped inmate, as he had a scar on the left side of his cheek and a crooked nose.

"Hastily, I searched through my pockets for paper and pencil and wrote a note. I then sent the dog home to mother with the note under his collar. After what seemed a long time, I saw mother and some policemen coming toward me. The escaped man was captured without difficulty, as he was completely surprised.

"That night we read in the paper how nine year old Bobby Drew and his dog, Shiner, had captured an escapee. Below it told all about the incident. One week later Shiner and I received awards and medals for bravery. Shiner also got some dog food. Poor Shiner has been dead for eighty years or more.

"If you come over again sometime, Donnie, I'll tell you another story."

I'll bet Donnie went back again, don't you?

RAIN AND TEARDROPS

I walk quietly, solemnly through the light spring rain. A deep cloud of thought shadows me. I feel alone yet surrounded by friends. The rain reminds me of the thousands of people, the sad people of the world, crying because of the loss of a son or husband, because of the loss of their homes or country, because of the starvation, the cold and the strife. All of these tears fall together in the silent, constant drip, drip of the rain. But when the sun shines and the rain can only be seen in small pools, everything changes. A beautiful rainbow hovers over the world. Worries and heartaches are forgotten, and all the tears are dried.

TRUMAN IS DEAD

Truman is dead! It happened yesterday at ten o'clock in the morning. Of course many people who loved him are mourning, but many others are glad that he is gone. Other people don't know, and some just don't care.

Poor Truman didn't live a very happy life. So many people made fun of the things he did. My aunt even said she couldn't stand to be near the slimy creature.

Most of the time he simply lay and sunned himself. People said he was very lazy. I guess he didn't do much for the country.

Oh, by the way, if you're interested, poor Truman was my pet turtle.

I WONDER

The rain drummed monotonously on the window as I sat in front of the crackling fireplace. I was glad to be inside. Having nothing to do, I went into my fathers' library to get a book. Not knowing which book to choose, I closed my eyes and picked one. The black cover had no name on it. Strange as it seemed, I had never seen this book in all the times I had been in Dad's library. The book was dusty and had a strange odor. Curious, I took the book back to the fireplace and began to glance over the first page. The first sentence drew my attention, for the girl in the story had the same name as I, and she, too, was reading a book in front of the fireplace. I glanced up at the weird, dancing shadows cast by the flames on the walls.

I looked back at the book. The girl in the story heard a strange noise, like the clanging of chains, coming down the hall. Suddenly I froze—what was that strange noise I heard? It sounded like chains clanging from the hall! Beads of perspiration stood on my forehead, and my stomach muscles froze into a knot. I tried to get up, but my legs wouldn't move! I smelled the same strange odor that I had noticed on the book, but it was coming from the hall. I looked around for the book and it was gone! Then I saw it in the fireplace on the fire. It was not burning!

Everything went black, and the next thing I knew mother was laughing beside me. She said I had fallen asleep. I realized that it was only a dream. The book I had been reading was beside me. I opened it. The edges of the book were burned, and the pages were blank! I still wonder . . .

America

Progressive mills and crystal lakes,
Huge cities and nestled villages,
Wide prairies and snow-capped mountains,
Happy people and crowded forests.

Progressive mills
with machinery and gear,
Crystal lakes,
blue and clear,
Huge cities,
noisy and tall,
Nestled villages,
quiet and small,
Wide prairies,
flat and gold,
Snow-capped mountains,
worn out and old,
Happy people,
some lanky and lean,
Crowded forests,
sweet smelling and green:

America.

NEW GIRL IN TOWN

"Why oh why, did we have to move to this horrid town." Janet threw herself on her pretty pink spread and wept. She was so lonely here, and it was only the beginning of the summer. Perhaps if school had started, she would have met some young people of her own age who would have made friends with her. She thought back to her happy, carefree life in Middleton. There had been parties, dances, clambakes; and she had had so much fun. Most of all, there were her friends, but they were two hundred miles away, and for Janet the world had never been bluer. The family had moved there three weeks before, and she still didn't know anyone in town.

After a while the tears subsided, and a cheery voice from downstairs interrupted her thoughts, "Janet dear, will you please go down to the drugstore and get some ice cream for supper?"

"Well, at least it is something to do!" Janet sighed. "I might as well take a stroll downtown. Maybe I'll trip over someone and we'll get acquainted and—Oh, what's the use!"

She went to the mirror. Her eyes were a bit red, but a little cold water would remedy that. She ran a comb through her hair and dabbed some powder on her now shiny nose. "Oh, what does it matter how I look," she thought furiously. "No one will notice me anyway."

On the way downtown Janet looked about the quiet streets. It was really a pleasant looking town; neat houses lined the streets and spreading shade trees bordered well-cared-for lawns. Sometimes it almost seemed like Middleton to her.

Two houses down the street from hers, she noticed a slim, blonde girl just entering the house. She reminded her of her best pal, Bunny, and Janet felt another twinge of loneliness.

She entered the drug store and ordered a coke to drink while she was waiting for the clerk to put up the ice cream. As she sat there, sipping her coke, her thoughts just drifted. Something made her want to glance up. In the shiny, clean mirror over the fountain she noticed a dark, good-looking boy staring at her. She had noticed him when she had entered the store. His dark, wavy hair was mussed, and his open shirt collar added to his dashing appearance. Janet smiled back at him in the mirror, and he turned and said, "Hi! You're new in town aren't you?"

She replied that she was, and the conversation went on from there. She learned that his name was Dick Flyn and that he too was a senior in high school. As she got up to leave, he stopped her and to her amazement asked, "How's about going to a party with me tonight? The gang is having a party out to the lake. I haven't a date, and it would be a swell chance for you to meet the gang. Will you go?"

Janet was so surprised at the sudden invitation that she hardly had time to think before she replied, "Yes, I'd like to go with you."

She explained where she lived; the time was set and she started home with a much lighter step than had carried her down town.

Janet took extra pains in dressing that evening. Her new green beach suit and skirt heightened the green tints of her eyes, and her creamy white complexion was surrounded by a mass of curls, part of which was confined by a white scarf. She was ready when Dick called for her. She introduced him to her parents who agreed that he seemed like a nice boy.

"It's about five miles out to the lake,"

Dick explained as they drove along. "You'll have a swell time. It's mostly high school kids in our crowd and we have some wonderful parties!"

Janet grew more excited by the moment. She could hardly wait to reach the lake, for it would be the beginning of a new world for her.

A big bonfire was burning on the beach and there were already about eight couples grouped around it. Some were singing while one of the fellows strummed on an old uke. Others were talking and fooling. Janet was introduced to the crowd, and they seemed to accept and welcome her. Soon someone suggested that they go swimming. The girls all dashed up to the camp to change into their bathing suits and for about an hour they splashed about in the warm lake.

A cool breeze came up, and the girls went to change back into their clothes. When Janet returned to the beach, she noticed Dick was much absorbed in one of the other girls. Janet remembered her name was Ellen and spoke to her. She dropped down beside him, but he didn't even notice her. She started talking about what a good time she was having and how glad she was that she had come but he didn't pay any attention to her. Janet tried to gain his attention again and then gave up. In a few minutes by mutual consent Dick and Ellen got up and walked away. Janet noticed that everyone's eyes were on her, and she had never felt so hurt and humiliated before. Tears sprang to her eyes and she got up and started stumbling toward the camp. One of the girls named Dotty caught up with her and took her by the arm.

"I'm sorry this had to happen tonight, Janet. That is one of Dick's tricks—coming with one girl and picking another to take home. I was hoping he would be satisfied to stay with you tonight. He is the most conceited imbecile in town! He does it to satisfy his ego that he can have his pick."

Tears were streaming down Janet's face by now. To think that she had been fool enough to come with him. Now he had made a bigger fool of her in front of the crowd. How could she ever face them again. They probably would never accept her as one of them now. Oh, why did she ever come?

One of the parents who were chaperoning the party came in to find out what the matter was. Dotty explained and they understandingly left the two girls alone.

"Please stop crying, Jan," Dotty begged. "Come out and join the crowd with me."

"Oh, Dotty, I never can face them again," wailed Janet. "I want to go home. They'll laugh and laugh at me and I can't bear it."

"Of course you can and you're going to," Dotty replied firmly. "Now come and dry your tears and let's go out and join the others."

When the girls rejoined the group, they gathered around and sang for a while. Janet was watching some of the horseplay of the clowns of the crowd when a quiet blond boy sat down beside her. She recognized him immediately. He was Alan, Ellen's date. He laughed at the two, mimicing characters in a recent movie.

"Those two are good, aren't they?" he said.

"Yes, they are," Janet answered. She felt a little stiff and didn't know just what to say, but she soon found Alan was easy to talk to and the conversation flowed easily. She soon found she was telling him all about herself, that they had moved to Newbrook three weeks before and how homesick she had been for her old friends.

When it was time to go home, she wasn't surprised when Alan asked her to go home with him. She was really pleased that he had asked her. He wasn't exciting like Dick, but she was glad.

That night she thought as she climbed into bed that the evening couldn't have turned out better. She had found two new, wonderfully special friends: Dotty, who lived only two houses away and Alan, with whom she had a date for next week.

PAST WINTERS

It was snowing hard, and the thermometer was hovering at zero when I stepped into the barber shop to get warm.

In the chair next to the stove sat an old bald headed man, who looked to be all of eighty years old. His plump body, pug nose, and cauliflower ears would give you the impression of a one time wrestler. As he looked out the window with his dark green beady eyes and chewed briskly on a mouth full of tobacco, he stroked his long white beard and nonchalantly ejected a stream of tobacco juice across the room into a highly polished silver cuspidor. He was undoubtedly possessor of expert marksmanship.

One of his fantastic tales still lingers in my memory:

"Why, when I was a young fellow, I used to consider twenty below zero a rather mild day. One winter it was so cold that a visiting Eskimo nearly froze to death. The same winter while I was pouring a cup of coffee, the stuff froze solid before it reached the cup. Even indoors it was bitter cold, so I always sat on the stove. And one winter the lake froze so stiff that the ice lasted all summer." Then another stream of tobacco juice flew across the room and into the cuspidor for another direct hit. "But I'll never forget the snow-ball blizzard when it snowed one and two pound flakes for two days steady. And talk about deep snow—why one day I tripped on the steeple of the town hall. Yes sir, those were real winters."

Winter of '52

Temperatures of ten below;
Pastures buried under snow;
Heaters running out of oil;
Frozen pipes and constant toil.
Clearing paths to barn and shed;
Hauling feed to forty head;
While an icy north'er blows
Numbing feet and hands and nose.
Some may like this frigid clime.
I prefer the summer time!

PEACE AT LAST

In the kitchen the clock is ticking quietly. It almost seems to say, "How sad. How sad." Why is this? True, it is way past time for the family to be up, but it's such a quiet morning that they should sleep late.

Yes, so quiet—only the ticking of the clock is heard. Even friendly, noisy "Wags" is quiet this morning. Not a car has gone down the broad street for him to chase.

Wait, there's another sound. What is it that so quietly steals down the street? Ah, just a vagrant breeze stirring through the frost-yellowed leaves.

Now from downtown the heavy ring of the town clock finds its way into the kitchen. It sounds twelve times, echoes from the hill, is gone. Still the kitchen, the house, and the street are quiet. And on the front porch the headlines proclaim, "Army to Try New Weapon This Morning."

Paris 13-Bridgton 0 Sept. 22, 1952 Paris 13-Norway 6 Sept. 29, 1952

South Paris opened their season by handing Bridgton a 13-0 defeat at the Community Athletic Field. Both teams were scoreless in the first period, but shortly after the second period got under way, Paris staged a series of plunges that brought the ball to the 25. Richards then took the ball, broke through Bridgton's line, and ran the distance for the touchdown. A pass, Richards to Snow, was good for the conversion. In the closing minutes of the third period Richards again took the pigskin and pushed through the line to race a brilliant 55 yards for the Parisian's final TD. A pass attempt for the conversion failed.

South Paris ran their win streak to ten games by taking advantage of a couple of costly Norway fumbles. The Cardinals opened the scoring in the first period. Two quick passes to Johnson, followed by a series of plunges, put the ball on the Norway 20. Norway then was penalized twice down to the two yard line, where Bailey plunged over for the point. A pass to Snow was good for the point. In the third period Norway carried down to our goal line but had to take three plays before they got the ball over. Their placement attempt failed. South Paris tallied in the final frame when the hard hitting line pushed the Rams back up the field to the 12. Weeks then broke through the Norway line for the final TD.

Paris 18-Gould 0 Oct. 6, 1952

The Cardinals continued their winning ways by handing Gould an 18-0 defeat. In the opening frame Richards bulled over from the 3 yard stripe for the first score. In the third period Bailey raced 35 yards to the 15. The Cardinals then made a first down, and Bailey went around the end for the score. Midway in the final period Richards heaved a ten yard pass to Johnson, who burst through the Gould pack, reached the clear, and ran a brilliant 25 yards to pay dirt. All three Parisian attempts to convert failed.

Paris 25-Jay 14 Oct. 13, 1952

Jay High School was the next victim for Coach Chandler's charges. The Cardinals seemingly scored at will against the visitors, while both Jay touchdowns came at the expense of the Paris reserves. Bailey led the Cardinals offensively while Colby, Johnson and Richards were stonewalls on the defense. After Paris scored three quick touchdowns in the first half, the reserves had their chance to make good. Numerous penalties on the subs helped Jay to score their touchdowns.

Paris 6-Mexico 0 Oct. 20, 1952

At this game Paris got a real scare for the first time this year. Mexico held the Cardinals scoreless for the first half, but midway in the third period Paris worked the ball down to the Mexico 25. Richards then threw a pass over the center of the line to Johnson, who skillfully outraced the Mexico safety men. The conversion attempt failed. Although the Paris team seemed to be a little off on their playing, Mexico invaded Paris territory only twice.

Paris 33-Kennett 18 Oct. 27, 1952

The Cardinals made a long trek up to Conway, N. H., and came back with a strong victory over the hard-hitting Kennett team. Johnson, Richards, Bailey and Lauzier all scored touchdowns for the Parisians. The Cardinals were a determined outfit after the close game the week before. Lauzier played in place of the injured Bill Snow and made a spectacular run around the end in the third period for a score. Outstanding on offense were Johnson, Bailey, Richards and Lauzier, while Colby and Hicks played well in the line.

Paris 20-Norway 21 Nov. 5, 1952

South Paris had their winning streak stopped at 15 games by their long-time rivals, the Norway Rams. The defeat left Paris in a three way tie for the state title with Norway and Dexter. Norway opened the scoring in the first period with a two foot plunge by Thurston, followed by Saleeby's conversion. Richards passed 33 yards to Johnson for a touchdown and bulled over for the extra point. An interception, followed by a series of short gains led to Tyner's 12 yard run for the second Norway TD. Saleeby converted. Paris was working their way down field when they fumbled. Dyer picked it up and ran 60 yards for Norway's final touchdown. Saleeby again converted. Paris came back in a rage and went down field to the 12, where Richards passed to Bailey for the touchdown. Richards carried over for the point. Then after an exchange of punts, Coach Chandler's team came smashing back with Richards carrying on 10 out of 12 plays for 68 yards and the score. Bailey tried to go around end for the point but failed. Norway then held the ball until time ran out.

Paris High School, by joining Norway and Dexter in a three way tie became eligible to receive a class F state championship football trophy, offered by the Maine Principal's Association. Since the trophy won last year was returned, this will be the first football trophy to be added permanently to our collection.

The South Paris Cardinals, upholding the school tradition of never giving up, made eleven straight victories before St. Francis subdued them. They then lost two hard fought games to Mexico and Norway. After this, they found the range again, handing St. Francis their first defeat in twenty-one games and rolling over Livermore Falls 88 to 33. The Cardinals' record earned them fourth spot in the tournament seating, but the fast playing Wilton Academy Eagles defeated them in the opening round 54-44. Because our Sun-Journal League standing was equal to that of Mexico High School, a play-off was necessary to determine the winner of the Western-Division, that would then play Wilton Academy for the trophy. The game was played on the neutral Gould Academy floor; we were beaten in a hard fought game 42-38.

Paris-Mexico

Bill Snow, high scorer for the Parisians, led South Paris to a 48-47 win over Mexico by scoring twenty-nine points. After a tied first quarter, Mexico went ahead at half-time 23-21. South Paris came back strongly and held Mexico to three points and led 35-26 at the end of the quarter. When Bill Snow fouled out, Mexico crept up on South Paris and came within one point of tying us. Mexico missed a foul shot with four seconds to go. This made us the winners.

Paris-Norway

Norway High School, our long time rivals, gave us a real scare in the first meeting between the two schools. Leading by four points at the end of the first period, they stretched the lead to five

J. V. Basketball

For the last three years South Paris High School has had excellent basketball teams. Where does such a small school as ours get its seemingly inexhaustable supply of stars? The answer is the J. V.'s.

In the three years Head Coach Griffith has been here, Paris has developed many good ball players from the J. V. ranks. From this year's varsity, LeBlanc, Martin, Mason, Johnson, N. Dillingham, Crooker, Wentworth, and Davis have all come up from the J. V.'s. Three of these, Leblanc, Johnson, and Wentworth played on the starting five.

This year's J. V. coach was Mr. Chandler, our head football mentor. The squad is divided into five different teams, and each of them have a chance to play in every game. By giving each boy a chance to play, everyone is given an equal opportunity to show his "wares" and try for that much sought after position on the varsity.

The teams they played this year are as follows: Gould, Stephens of Rumford, Norway and Hebron twice, and Mexico, Scarborough, and Hallowell once. Considering the system used, their four wins—seven losses does not seem like a bad record.

Under our present system, good sportsmanship is also emphasized so that these boys may represent Paris High in the future in a way that will be a credit to our school.

Paris decided to take advantage of the abundance of snow this winter by fielding a winter sports team with Mr. William Small as coach and Buddy Colby as captain. About fourteen boys came out at the start with a few changes as the season went on. Practises were held at Bryant's Hill in Paris and at the tow on Emerson's Hill in Norway. Paris participated in five meets and made a good showing in all. They split two meets with Buckfield, losing the first in North Buckfield and winning the second in Paris. They also lost to the Hebron Reserves in a close meet. At the state meet and at the Buckfield carnival several of the skiers made good showings, but the team score was down. Buddy Colby and Larry Beck were our best all round skiers, while Cliff Morse and Jimmie Merrill made a good showing in cross country.

BASEBALL

First Row—Mr. Griffith, K. Bailey, K. Bean, W. Snow, R. Richards, D. Hile, F. Weeks.

South Paris won its first state championship after falling short in basketball and being declared ineligible in football. The strong left arm of Bill Snow, combined with the heavy hitting of Ray Richards and Kent Bailey, led the Cardinals.

Leading Hitters: Richards, .471; Bailey, .422; Snow, .400; Bean, .314; Harney, .313.

Pitching Records

	Won	Lost	So	BB	Average
Snow	10	0	151	44	1.000
Martin	1	0	12	6	1.000
Swan	1	0	9	3	1.000
Richards	0	1	3	3	.000

Paris won the opening game of the tournament 6-1 over Mechanic Falls, behind their ace hurler, Bill Snow, who struck out 19. Bailey and Harney were the big hitters.

The second game we took from Livermore Falls by the score of 3-0. Bill Snow pitched a no-hitter and struck out 14. Paris got 7 hits, 5 walks and went out on strikes 8 times.

Paris' one man pitching-staff made it 9 straight by defeating Saint Ignatius 5-1 on only 3 hits and 14 strike outs. Richards got 2 for 4 and 2 RBI'S to take hitting laurels for the game.

Paris brought the season to an end in high fashion by belting Eastport 10-1. With only Bean, Hile and Swan graduating, a good showing in 1952 is indicated.

GIRLS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

First Row—V. Stearns, A. Card, A. Lowe, A. Hapgood, H. Bean, M. Starbird.

Second Row—Miss Laverty, B. Hall, N. Kelleher, E. Gay, B. Gammon, R. Bourgois, G. Harding, C. Davis, E. Gay.

Basketball practice for the girls began in November under the direction of Coach Laverty. About twenty-seven girls came out to practice. Later in the season the squad was cut to twelve who made up the varsity team. Virginia Stearns was elected captain, and Christine Davis and Eleanor Gay were elected managers for the 1951-52 season.

The starting six consisted of three Seniors, two Juniors and one Sophomore. They were Amy Hapgood, Junior, C. F.; Marion Starbird, Senior, L. F.; Virginia Stearns, Senior, R. F.; Ada Lowe, Senior, L. G.; Annette Card, Junior, C. G.; Hazel Bean, Sophomore, R. G.

The reserves who helped the team through the season were Beverly Hall, Bertha Gammon, Rosemary Bourgois, Seniors; Glenice Harding, Nancy Kelleher, Juniors.

Although our record for the season was four wins and four losses, we feel it was a successful season, as much experience has been gained. The three members of the starting team and the three substitutes who will be lost through graduation wish the team next year the best of luck.

The games of the season and the scores are as follows:

Paris 25-Bridgton 32
 Paris 40-Alumni 48
 Paris 28-Livermore Falls 23
 Paris 30-Bridgton 50
 Paris 35-Mexico 34
 Paris 34-Mexico 27
 Paris 44-Woodstock 46
 Paris 46-Livermore Falls 32

The West Paris games were cancelled.

GIRLS' JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

M. Doiron, B. Thayer, R. Doughty, P. Conley, H. Verrill, C. Swallow, J. Edmunds, J. Curtis, M. Gordon, J. Russell, Miss Laverty.

The South Paris Junior Varsity girls started their season against the Bridgton lassies in the Paris gym. The girls seeing action in the game were Swallow, Edmunds, Doughty, and Thayer for forwards; Conley, Curtis and Russell for guards.

The score at the end of the first quarter was 12-2 with the Paris girls in the lead. But by the end of the second quarter the Bridgton girls seemed to have found the basket and brought the score up to 12-11.

The third quarter proved to be very interesting. At the end of the quarter the score was 17-17. The first part of the fourth quarter the score remained close, but in the closing minutes the Bridgton girls pulled away, and the game ended 29-23, with Bridgton the winners. Doughty was high scorer with 10 points.

A few weeks later the girls traveled to Bridgton. The girls playing in the game were—forwards: Edmunds, Thayer, Doughty, Verrill; guards: Gordon, Conley, Curtis, Russell, Swallow.

The first quarter our girls held them and the score was 4-4, but for the remainder of the game it was Bridgton all of the way. The final score was 30-10 with Bridgton winning.

The good school spirit shown by the girls throughout these games gives much credit which the scores do not indicate.

VARSITY CHEERLEADING

N. Kelleher, J. Curtis, B. Bennett, E. Gay, B. Hall, J. Davis, B. Gammon, C. Conant.

Led by their head cheerleader, Beverly Hall, the varsity cheerleaders met early in September determined to uphold the high tradition of last year's squad. Beatrice Bennett and Bertha Gammon returned as veterans; and Charlene Conant, Eleanor Gay, Nancy Kelleher, Joanne Curtis and Janice Davis came up from the Junior Varsity squad.

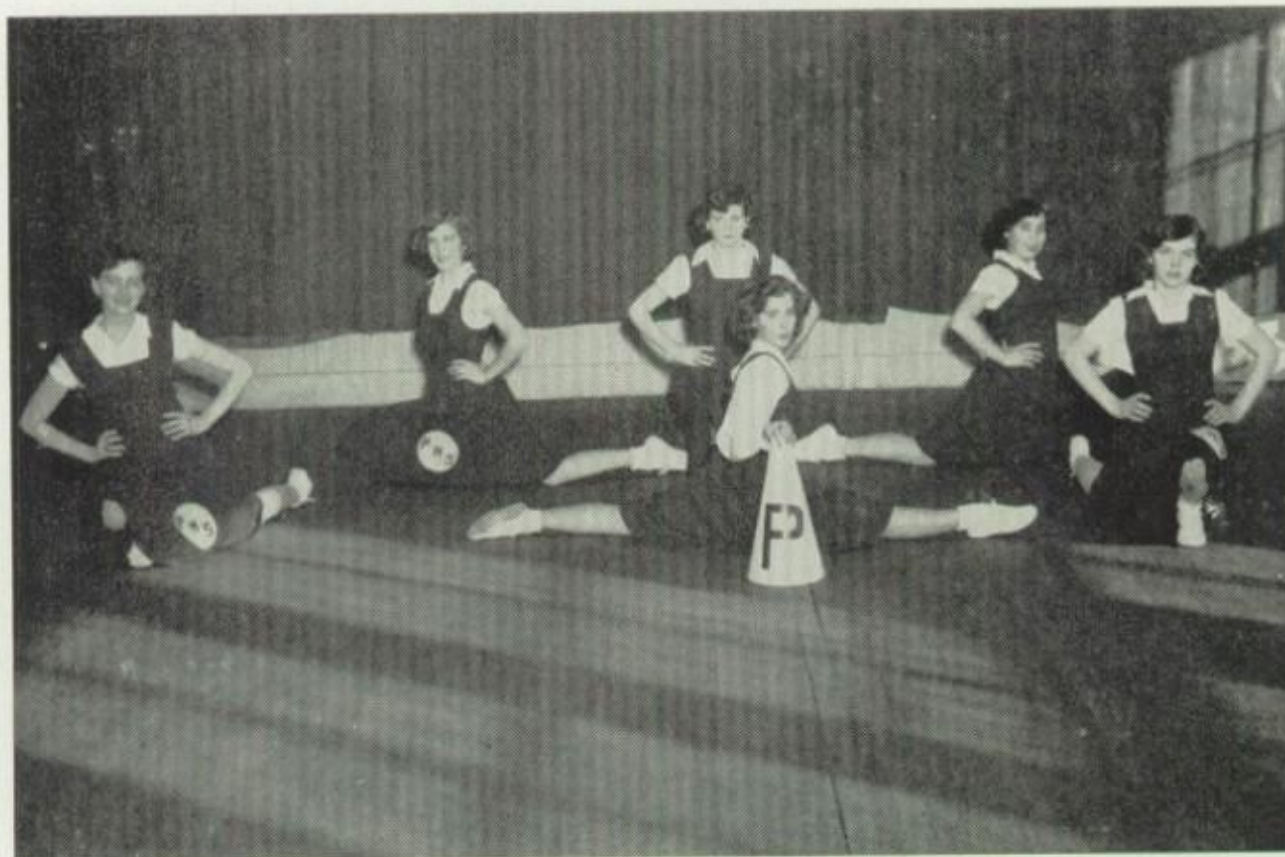

Strenuous practice sessions, directed by Beverly, resulted in new songs, cheers and routines that enlivened the pre-game rallies held at assemblies. The girls cheered at each football game of the season and led the torch light parade on the eve of the Norway-Paris Game.

At the opening of the basketball season the cheerleaders featured their new maroon and white uniforms. The girls, who chose their pattern and cloth and made the uniforms themselves with the help of mothers and friends, raced wildly against time to complete the outfits before the first basketball rally. Money for the cloth was earned by a food sale, sponsored by the P. T. A. and two victory dances.

The thanks of the squad goes to Mrs. Seymore Card, Mrs. Marion Fields, Mrs. Donald Bourgois, Mrs. Marjorie Downing and Mrs. Henry Judd for their help with the uniform project.

The resourcefulness and effort shown by the cheerleaders this season has been appreciated by the teams, coaches, and students of Paris High School.

J. V. CHEERLEADING

L. to R.—B. Crooker, B. Bessey, M. Gammon, P. Conley, S. Bennett, A. Ryerson.

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders led cheers for Cardinal teams at twenty-two games this season, including fourteen junior varsity boys' games, six varsity girls' games, and two junior varsity girls' games. Joining with the varsity squad, they have helped with pre-game rallies at assemblies.

Of the girls who reported for practice in the fall, Beth Crooker was the only veteran. From these girls the varsity cheerleaders selected the following squad on the basis of pep, ability and disposition: Sophomores—Beth Crooker, Aline Ryerson, and Penny Conley; Freshmen—Barbara Bessey, Marilyn Gammon and Shirley Bennett. The newly-elected squad chose Penny Conley head cheerleader with Beth Crooker and Aline Ryerson alternates.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

The 1951 softball season opened with 21 prospective softball players reporting to our coach, Miss Greenleaf. The girls sported new softball uniforms, red pedal pushers with white blouses and red caps. The line up for the season was as follows:

Pitcher—Marion Starbird
 Catcher—Mildred Hammond
 1st Base—Rosemary Bourgois
 2nd Base—Patty LaBay
 3rd Base—Shirley Ripley
 Short Stop—Hazel Bean
 Left Field—Virginia Stearns
 Center Field—Bertha Gammon
 Right Field—Janice Erickson
 Substitutes were P. Grover, B. Hall, A. Pechnik, G. Harding, J. Verrill, G. Curtis, J. Verderber, J. Edmunds and A. Lombard.

Ada Lowe was chosen as our manager for '51.

The schedule indicates that we did not have an undefeated season, but we were successful in staying above average in the win column.

The newly formed school band, organized and directed by our principal, Mr. Bryant C. Bean, is composed of musicians from West Paris and Paris High Schools. Monday afternoon rehearsals are held alternately at the two schools.

Band officers are Annette Card, head majorette; Richard MacGown, President; Robert Martin, secretary; Margaret Perham, treasurer; Nancy Kelleher and Franklyn Stone, librarians.

Organized in October, the band made a first appearance at the pep rally and bonfire preceding the final Norway-Paris football game. At this game the band added color and interest by parading at halftime and forming the initials of the opposing schools.

To mark the opening of the basketball season the band gave an exhibition at both the West Paris gym and the armory.

Concerts were given at a meeting of the Lions' Club and the February P. T. A. meeting. Band folios have been purchased to hold the newly acquired marches and overtures.

The band is looking forward with great anticipation to attending the Western Maine Music Festival in the spring. There, dressed in their new uniforms, they will meet musical groups from other schools.

ORCHESTRA

The orchestra meets for rehearsals every Friday noon in the music room, where many a pleasant hour is spent struggling with waltzes, marches, and old favorites under the careful and untiring direction of Mrs. Helen B. Shaw, who has been music supervisor in the Paris schools for thirty-three years. Chenille letter will be awarded at the end of the year to those who have faithfully attended practice.

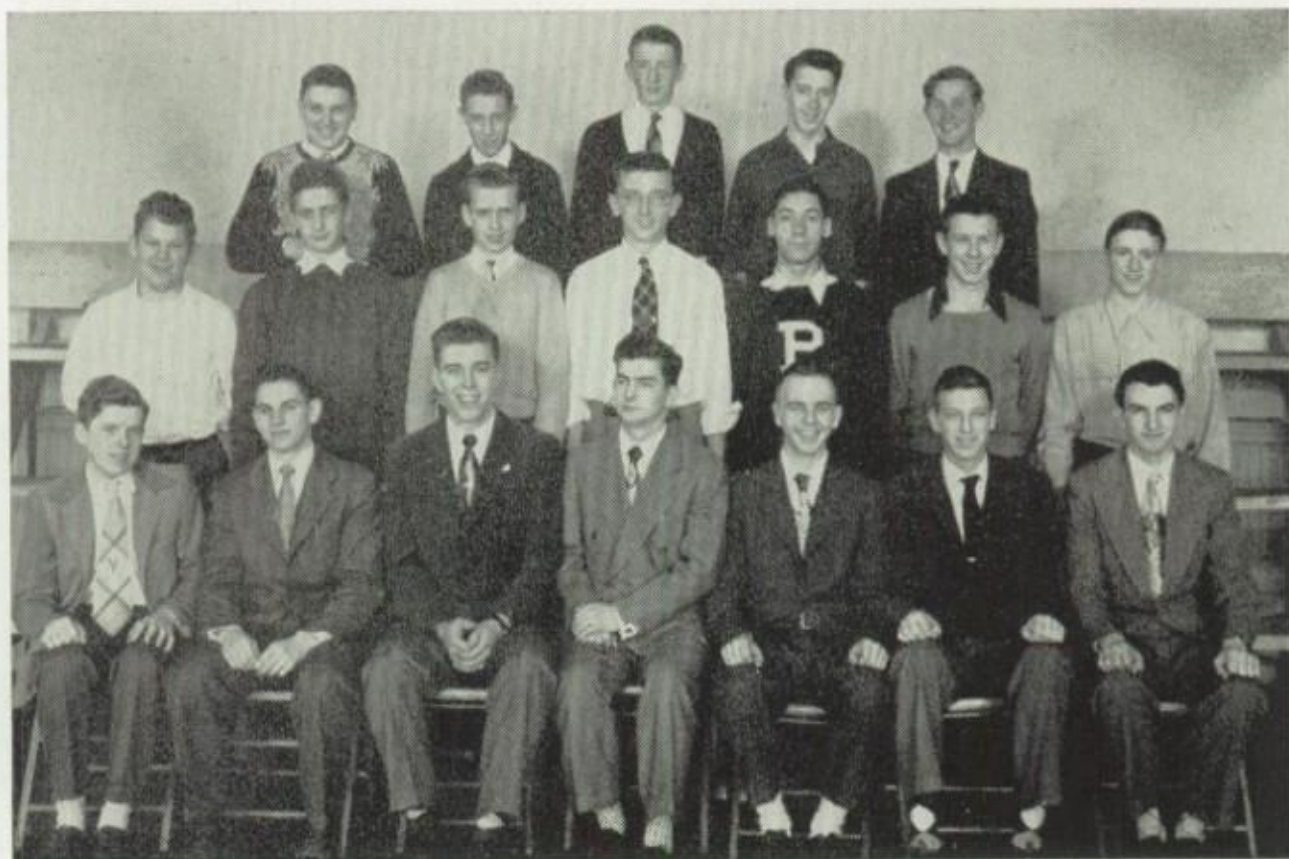

This year we have added a new instrument, the trombone, played by Priscilla Butterfield and Merwin Lary. Our other players and their instruments are: Eleanor Gay, Geneva Woodworth, Nancy Kelleher, piano; Henry Morton, Rachel Stone, Janice Merrill, Robert Cushman, saxophone; Nancy Bourgois, clarinet; Raymond Wentworth, trumpet; Stanley Sturtevant, violin; Richard MacGown, drums.

We enjoy the new piano that has been installed in the auditorium through the efforts of the P. T. A. New folios have been purchased to hold the music, which before had a vague way of disappearing.

The officers for the year are as follows: president, Eleanor Gay; secretary, Nancy Kelleher; librarian, Merwin Lary.

The orchestra annually provides music for the Junior play, Senior play, and the graduation exercises.

SENIOR PLAY

First Row—M. Doiron, B. Hall, N. Nutting, M. Hammond.

Second Row—L. Murch, D. Polland, C. Trask, J. Hicks, K. Bailey.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde, was presented by the Senior Class on November 30 at the Association Hall. Mr. Keith Cunningham was the director.

The plot portrayed the trials of a family that had difficulty in finding their relatives. The resulting mix-up of relations, friends and sweethearts gave the audience three acts of amusing comedy that featured the Bunberrying experiences of Kent, the mistaken identity of John, the confusion of Marie and Beverly, and the constant disapproval of Marian.

The nineteenth century English garden, with furniture made by the shop boys, was a fitting background for the old fashioned costumes that townspeople so generously loaned.

Second Row—W. Hazelton, A. Hapgood, L. Strout, Mr. Cunningham, E. Gay.

The Junior play, "Adam's Evening", was presented April 25 at the Association Hall, directed by Mr. Keith Cunningham.

The cast included Mr. Adams, Raymond Wentworth; Casper, Richard McGown; Dr. Fragoni, Warren Hazelton; Mr. Cokes, Gary Downing; Elmer, Loring Strout; Mrs. Adams, Mary Turner; Gertie, Evelyn McKeen; Mrs. Fragoni, Eleanor Gay; Mrs. Cokes, Carleen Stone; and Mrs. Bean, Amy Hapgood.

The committees were: general manager, Sylvia Johnson; prompters, Jackie Verrill and Ted Kimball; sound effects, James Washburn; lights and curtains, Henry Morton; scenery and props, Clifford Morse, Laurence Estes, Robert Beck, Bill Snow, Stephen Carroll, Joe Harney, Roger Tuttle, Stan Smith, and Eugene Wilson; make-up, Mr. Bryant Bean, Miss Nathalie Hall, and William Culbert; between acts, Nancy Kelleher, Charlene Conant, and Joan Curtis; programs, ushers, and concessions, Annette Card, Janice Davis, Laurene Britton, and Joann Curtis; tickets, Patty Swallow, and Glenice Harding; and publicity, William Culbert and Donald Turner.

This play was about Mr. Adams, who during his wife's absence had an enjoyable evening with Dr. Fragoni's wife, only to have his wife and mother-in-law find out later. Murderous threats by Dr. Fragoni and suicide talk by Elmer added to the hilarity. We hope our satisfied audience will look forward to our Senior play.

Dear Diary, (October, 1950)

The Commercial Club members are starting a school paper. We hear that it is to be printed by the "Advertiser-Democrat" and will cost twenty cents an issue.

Dear Diary, (November, 1950)

Joyce Wentworth, a Junior, won the "Name Your School Paper Contest" today. From now on our informative school paper will be called "The-Student-Voice".

Dear Diary, (June, 1951)

The three issues this year paid for themselves and were enjoyed by all readers. We hope "The-Student-Voice" becomes a permanent part of Paris High School. Hats off to the Commercial Club for doing a splendid job!

Dear Diary, (November, 1951)

Instead of having the Commercial Club work on "The-Student-Voice" this year, it is to be published by the students of P. H. S. Any student—Freshman, Sophomore, Junior or Senior—who is interested in the school paper may seek staff membership.

Dear Diary, (February, 1952)

There have been three issues to date and another is due off the press soon. "The-Student-Voice" has brought many pictures and news items to its readers this year. It has increased its sales and made itself known to the public. Thanks should go to friends and merchants for their donations and to Miss Hall for her help as advisor.

Junior High Assembly

The Junior High had an assembly December 4. Dennis Tripp, president of the Eighth Grade, was in charge. James Coughlin read the Scripture, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer. "America the Beautiful" was sung by everyone.

Mrs. Small, a former speech teacher in Waterville schools, entertained the pupils with three readings, which were greatly enjoyed. These readings were in connection with the study of good expression and enunciation in the reading program.

U. S. A.

It is hard to describe America. From its rolling hills to its pounding surf, it is all beautiful. From California, land of sunshine, to Maine and its rockbound coast, you are filled with love for its beauty. Fields and fields of amber grain, rich and ready for harvest; orchards upon orchards of rich, ripe fruit; gigantic mountains of beauty with high peaks above the clouds; towering redwoods and green graceful pines, are all part of America. From the High Sierras to Death Valley there is such grandeur that can't be compared. From the clear blue waters of the Great Lakes to the mad rushing rivers that go on their way to the ocean, there is beauty. From the high Appalachian Mountains to the vast heated deserts of Arizona, beauty can't be compared. The high peaks and cliffs of the Grand Canyon and the soft rustling of the palm trees are all in America's beauty. The great cities with their tall sky scrapers are some of the largest and the most beautiful in the world. The United States of America is the most beautiful country in the world and we must always keep it that way.

COURTESY IN SCHOOL

During the fall, winter, and spring months a great deal of your time is spent in the "little red schoolhouse". You form many habits that will stick with you throughout the rest of your life. If you have good manners in school, later in your life elsewhere you also will have good manners.

A few things we should remember in being courteous. When in the corridor you pass in front of someone, excuse yourself. Try to avoid going in front of persons talking. Never interrupt persons talking to ask them something, tell them something, or show them something. Never draw a person away from his friends to tell or show him something private. Wait until he is alone.

In the classroom don't talk to someone when someone else is reading or speaking to either an individual or the class.

When in study hall, don't chew gum or candy, be quiet, and don't move all around. If you are asked to do something for a teacher, do it cheerfully and not grouchy.

When the bell rings and you are passing to another class, in or out of the building, or to study hall, don't push, shove, or shout.

All this has a bearing on your getting a good job later in life. An employer likes to ask a teacher for references. If a teacher writes and says you are rude, your employer will not want you. It always pays to be courteous in the end.

—Nancy Bourgois

MY RETREAT

A large two story log house is tucked away between the roaring ocean in front and high mountains to the rear. Located back among the firs and unpainted, it is invisible from the ocean or the air. The only telltale marks on the face of nature to show that the region is ever inhabited are a broad runway back in the woods and my motor cruiser anchored in a little bay up the beach.

Near the runway there is a good sized, well equipped workshop and hangar including a self starting gasoline generator that supplies electricity for the hangar, shop and house.

The house itself is quiet and restful. The light entering it has been filtered through the firs and is soft to the eyes. Though the generator supplies electricity for all the lights in the house, I prefer to use the kerosene lamps except for reading. In the cellar I keep enough food to last me a year. The kitchen is equipped with all the modern contraptions so that I will not be wasting a lot of my time getting my meals. I have a refrigerator, and a dishwasher. (I hate to wash dishes.)

In my retreat from civilization I can do as I wish: rest, climb the mountains to the rear, swim in the ocean at my door, work in my shop, and in general, let the rest of the world go its merry way. If I become curious as to which way it is going, I can step into my radio room, switch on an all wave radio receiver, and by use of antennas placed high on the mountain, I can listen to any station in the world. If I long for conversation, I sit down at a two way radio and talk to fellow men the world over.

When tired of being a modern hermit, I hop into my personal plane and fly back into this mixed up world of truth and hoey, always knowing that whenever my brain grows tired of this wonderful place, I can retreat.

In case you want to know where to find this heaven on earth, you are out of luck. Do you think I would have you running in and out? Not on your life. That would be like letting the human race build a tower to reach heaven.

—James Puffer

Rip Van Winkle

Up in the Catskill Mountains high
Rip Van Winkle lay down with a sigh.
And when he awoke twenty years later,
He stepped on his beard and fell in a crater.
When he went down into town,
Everyone laughed and called him a clown.
He stopped at the Inn
But spied none of his kin,
And then came his daughter
Who saved him from slaughter.
With her, he went home
But continued to roam.

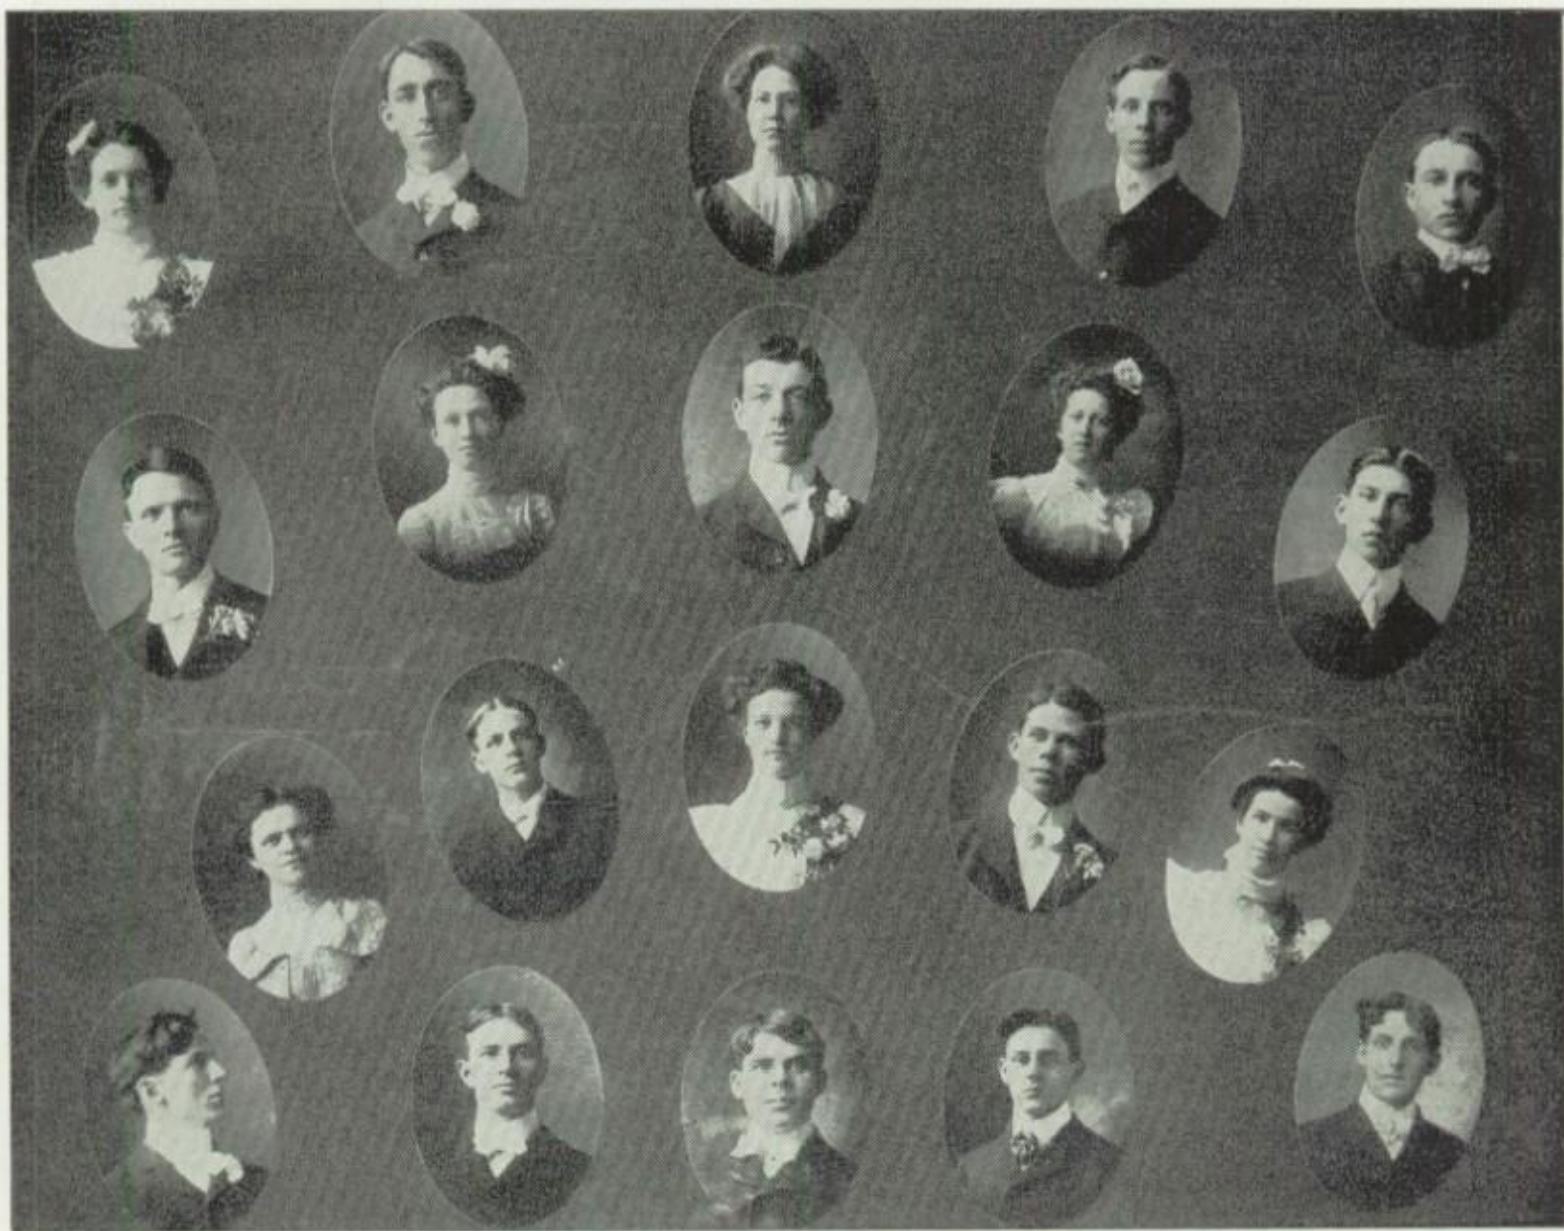

—Thomas Verrill

Skiing

Skiing is a lot of fun
To someone who knows how 'tis done.
As I saw others speed down the hill,
I thought 'twas easy to avoid a spill.
I strapped my skis upon my feet
And said that I would not be beat.
I started down like a bird so free
Until I hit that gnarled old tree.
I thought 'twould be the death of me,
But I'm still here as you can see.
I may forget the great big hill,
But I'll never forget the doctor's bill.
As I lay home in a big soft bed,
With yards of bandage on my head,
I thought I'd burn my skis for fun
To prove my skiing days were done.
—Stephen Hicks

Wild Daisies of Maine

Down in the valley,
Church bells ring,
To wake the daisies,
To tell them it's spring
Wild daisies of Maine,
All pretty and white,
Are blooming again,
Oh, what a sight!
Wild daisies of Maine,
Blooming in the spring.
One never could wish
A more beautiful thing.
Wild daisies of Maine
By the roadside grow,
Nodding their heads,
As the tourists go.
